BOSTONIANS CALL DEBATE A DRAW

U. S. TROOPS ATTACKED BY JAPS

VERDICT OF PUBLIC IS 'HONORS EVEN'

Governor Coolidge Points to Fact That Both Lodge and Lowell Favor League

Who won the League of Nations debate?

Boston, like the civilized world, discussed today whether Senator Lodge or President Lowell of Harvard had won the intellectual contest staged at Symphony Hall last night.

In common phrase, the majority of the nearly 4,000 who crammed Symphony Hall left the hall with the impression it was a "fifty-fifty" proposition. In the parlance of the prize ring "the best that either debater could be given was a draw."

GOVERNOR COOLIDGE:

"The question of what a League of Nations ought to undertake and what it ought not to undertake was never more clearly presented than in the discussion between Senator Lodge and President Lowell. The outstanding feature of the whole situation is that there seems to be very little disagreement. It was very significant that the proposal of Mr. Lowell was for a joint debate on "whether or not the substance of the provisions of this covenant should be ratified by the United States," and Mr. Lodge replied that he had "arranged for a public discussion of the plan for the League of Falling forty feet when the staging on which they were at work collapsed, three men were injured today at the "cow pasture," on the "Mile road," Dorchester. They are at the City Hospital, where two are in a serious condition.

The men are Alexander Oxley, twenty-five, No. 44 Calhoun avenue, Everett, probable fracture of the skull and bruises; James Ahern, twenty-one, No. 326 Saratoga street, East Boston, broken nose and bruises, and James Jordan, twenty, No. 26 Porter street, East Boston, fracture of left ankle and probable fracture of the skull. The men are iron workers, employed by the city.

GOVERNOR AND PARTY VISIT SERVICE MEN

Governor and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge were guests of the War Camp Community Service today at Jamaica Pond, where they had tea with a group of service men. The Governor's party included Robert A. Woods, Chauncy M. Waldron, Charles Jackson, Miss Margaret Starratt, Mrs. John Balch, Mrs. E. P. Coe, Miss Ethel Armes and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Stearns. The party first went to No. 48 Boylston street to inspect the Union Service Club, and from there to Jamaica Pond.

Spiritualism and "all forms of mediumistic approach to the dead were denounced as "utter folly, chicanery, trickery and sinful deceits," by Cardinal O'Connell in a sermon of consolation addressed to sorrowing friends and relatives of the heroes of Chateau Thierry today at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

Cardinal O'Connell was speaking from the dais behind the altar rail following a memorial mass in honor of the Chateau Thierry dead. A large congregation of relatives, friends and a goodly sprinkling of U. S. Marines partially filled the church.

During his sermon, which lasted nearly half an hour, the Cardinal eulogized the brave boys who paid the great price to make the world safe for democracy, and pleaded with

LIGHT BOARD POSTPONES CAMBRIDGE GAS CASE

The Gas and Electric Light Commission today postponed hearing on the complaint against the high cost of gas supplied by the Cambridge Gas Light Company, until July 22, Commissioner Solomon Lewenberg dissenting. The complaint was made by the Mayor of Cambridge when gas was selling for $1.15 per thousand feet. While the case was pending the company voluntarily reduced the price to $1.10. Commissioner Lewenberg believes the price should not be more than $1.05.

Y. D. TO PARADE AS SINGLE UNIT

Plan for Three-Section Procession Abandoned; Billeting Arrangements Complete

The Yankee Division will parade as a unit in Boston, all its organizations in the same line and on the same day, notwithstanding the efforts of some War Department officials to have the parade in three sections, 5,000 men appearing each day.

This was announced officially today by Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff at Northeastern Department headquarters, as was the fact that the plan of bringing half the men down from Camp Devens the night before the parade would be adhered to.

This latter plan is the only one which would make it possible to accommodate so many men, according to Colonel Williams. Those who arrive the day before the parade will be sent back to Camp Devens immediately after the exercises, while those who arrive the day of the parade will remain over night.

Boston armories will accommodate 11,000 men, according to Captain Henry D. Cormerais, billeting officer, and by having only half the division in town each night all may be made comfortable.

Captain Cormerais and Captains George C. Capelle and Leo Dillingham visited Boston armories today, and found that it would be possible to provide every man of the division with a cot while he is the guest of the city.

Colonel Williams stated that the new route is only eight miles long instead of twelve, as it was felt that so extended a parade would be wearisome and lose much of its effect.

WILKINS TELLS OF FLIGHT

Doctor Accused of Wife's Murder Pleads Innocence When Arraigned

By International News Service.

Long Beach, L. I., March 20.—Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins was arraigned here today on a charge of murder in the first degree in connection with the slaying of his wealthy wife, on February 27 last, and remanded to the custody of the sheriff of Nassau County without bail.

The physician, who was arrested at the Pennsylvania Station in New York last night, pleaded not guilty to the charge. Immediately after his arraignment Dr. Wilkins was taken to the county jail at Mineola.

While en route from police headquarters in New York to Long Beach Dr. Wilkins briefly gave his version of the motive which prompted his flight from New York on Sunday.

Dr. Wilkins was arrested in the the Pennsylvania Railroad Station in New York following the receipt of a telegram by District Attorney Charles R. Weeks of Nassau county, signed "Walter K. Wilkins." The telegram said:

"I see by the morning papers that I am under suspicion and that my case is to be presented to the Grand Jury today. Am returning to place myself in your hands."

DENIES HE IS GUILTY.

To Patrolman Cavanagh Wilkins insisted that he was innocent.

He admitted his identity, but protested against his arrest and appeared highly indignant.

It is not known definitely where he has been since he vanished last Sunday morning.

When searched, Dr. Wilkins had in his possession a hypodermic needle and two boxes of pills. He also had a wallet containing a number of bills. Following his booking there, he was taken to police headquarters, where he was detained for the night.

Asked by Desk Lieutenant Francis McCarrick whether he was married or

MAY ORDER THE BODY EXHUMED

H. R. Presby Found Dead in Undertaker's Shop in Pool of Blood Two Weeks Ago

District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex County may order the exhuming of the body of Herbert R. Presby, who died two weeks ago in the undertaking rooms of Charles A. Ives, No. 72 Pleasant street, Malden, for an autopsy.

This probility developed today as the result of an inquiry by the police and the district attorney's office.

Presby, who had been recently hired as night watchman by Mr. Ives, was found dead by the undertaker, shortly after reporting for duty.

The body was lying in a pool of blood and had suffered a wound in the head. Medical Examiner McCaffrey declared that death was due to heart failure, and that the wound had been caused by a fall. It was reported after the investigation, however, that one of the witnesses testified to having seen Presby being struck by an unknown man earlier in the evening.

PRESIDENT ELIOT 83 YEARS OLD TODAY

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard and still a dominating figure in the intellectual world, observed his eighty-fifth birthday today. The educator himself spent the day much as he spends other days, but his many friends convey to him by telephone or in person their good wishes. Dr. Eliot retired from the active presidency of Harvard ten years ago, after forty years of service, but his retirement from the chair did not mean his retirement from the world of thought and achievement, and he is as active mentally as he ever was, he assured intimates today.

Boston Bean Now Comes Forward to Combat H. C. L.

The Boston baked bean, set on a lofty pedestal by the war, is returning to its former status.

Prices have dropped. The bottom has gone right out of the bean market.

At whatever prices retailers dispose of their bean stocks, they stand to lose money, it was stated today by the S. S. Pierce Company, Last August, it was said, California pea beans were disposed of by the growers at $12 a bushel. Now the growers are asking but $6. Where the consumer paid as high as 16 or 17 cents a pound, he now pays but 10 or 11 cents.

So Boston baked beans are coming into their own again, and almost any family may have baked beans and brown bread for its Saturday night repast.

"All Right," Says Boy in Answer to Father's Ad

"Dear Father: I heard that you had advertised for me in the papers. I am all right. Your son, John."

This is the message received by George W. Morton, No. 104 Elm street, Stoneham, from his fifteen-year-old son, who disappeared from home last September. Earl, another son, aged fourteen, vanished Jan. 22.

The letter quoted, just received by the father through the mail, is the only word he has received from either boy since their disappearance.

The letter has a Boston postmark, but contains no hint as to where the boy is.

Mr. Morton identifies the handwriting of the letter as John's, but has received the impression that the boy was not a free agent in writing as he did.

Japanese Police Action on American Soldiers Said to Have Been Unprovoked

By International News Service.

Washington, March 20.—Unofficial advices indicating that the recent Tien Tsin disturbance was precipitated by an entirely unprovoked attack by Japanese police upon American soldiers were received in Washington today.

Pending the arrival of the official report of the investigation, conducted by William Spencer, attached to the American embassy at Pekin, officials refused to discuss these informal advices.

However, State Department officials clearly indicate that if the version of the affair as received today was borne out in Spencer's report, representations would be made to the Japanese government.

GERMANY TO FLOOD U. S. WITH ALIENS IN BIG BATTLE FOR TRADE

PLANS WAR FOR COMMERCE OF WORLD, SAYS NAVAL EXPERT

By DELT M. EDWARDS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
Copyright by International News Service.

London, March 20.—Germany has accepted the fact that she is beaten hopelessly.

To rebuild herself, she now is planning a great commercial offensive on the entire world, aiming first at the United States.

She greatly fears, as a possible bar to her success, Bolshevism, from within, and restriction of immigration from without. She fears America's restriction more than anything else in the world.

MILITARY HOPE GONE.

These are the outstanding observations of Lieutenant Commander Hugo W. Koehler, of the United States Navy, who has just returned from Germany after a six weeks' tour. He spent considerable time in many large cities, many small ones, the Spartacus-inspired regions and studied social, political and economic conditions there. He made visits to Germany's merchant fleet, submarines and warships still in harbor.

"Germany today knows there is no military hope," he said. "The people all are solidly determined to carry on a commercial offensive that will stagger the world, principally America, to build up the world trade that they lost.

"Germany is not defeated commercially. The only things that can block her for a time are Bolshevism from within and the restriction of immigration by the United States.

She needs food and raw materials. Both of these will choke off Bolshevism in plenty of time for Germany to recuperate.

COMMERCE IN HOPE NOW.

"Of course there is not the same old well co-ordinated, hardworking government. But give this new group time and it will soon have an organization working properly. Its members know they are down and out as far as military effort goes. They realize that commerce is their only hope—and they are going after it right away.

"How? Germany is planning to send millions of emigrants to the United States, and it will be an emigration of an entirely different class than the average that has come to America in the past; for these emigrants are to be commercial missionaries.

"Germans explain that if they lose their colonies and the greater part of former markets they will not be able to support their present population, and that the first need for Germany therefore is the opening of new markets.

"Accordingly, the people are being told that they may best serve the Fatherland by going to America and there opening up markets for German goods by the simple expedient of buying only things made in Germany. If immigration is unrestricted in the United States there is no doubt at all but that the Germans are coming over in millions.

MUST PAY FOR WAR.

Of course, restriction of immigration would keep them out of the country, but it will not prevent them from selling razors and dyes, if they sell better razors and dyes than we do and for less money. The only real solution would appear to be to beat them at their own game, that is to make better razors and dyes than they do.

"Germans have reconciled themselves to the fact that they must pay for war. They realize that the only way to pay for it is to get control of the markets of the world; get control by putting in no cheap stuff, but good stuff.

"They understand that for them to flood the world with cheap articles of poor quality would close the markets of the world against them more effectively than any tariff could. And they understand too, that war or no war people are going to buy where they can get the most serviceable things cheap.

"Germany is going to convert her former officers of the military establishment into agents of the commercial army. They will also send their keenest business men, commercial and otherwise. These men will at once begin their efforts to provide a market for German goods by the simple process of having a million immigrants demand such German goods."

Ludendorff Living In Seclusion at Berlin

By H. J. GREEWALL.
Exclusive Cable by the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Berlin, March 19, via London, March 20.—General Ludendorff, former quartermaster-general, who recently disposed of his bond on the war at Stockholm, is living here in seclusion.

Ludendorff insisted that the book be published outside of Germany. He still refers to "his majesty the emperor," and the book, when published, is expected to defend the ex-Kaiser.

Ludendorff has become morose and silent and leaves the hotel where he is living by a side door. He refuses to recognize friends. When it was suggested that he go on a lecture tour he gruffly declared he was not interested.

WILKINS HELD; DENIES KILLING HIS WIFE

single, Dr. Wilkins fussed a moment and answered:

"Er—a—a widower now."

To the other questions put to him he said that his name was Walter K. Wilkins, that he lived at No. 164 West 146th street, that he was born in the United States and is a physician. He was then finger-printed and searched.

Dr. Wilkins has said that his wife was struck about sixteen times on the head by the intruder who killed her. The hat is crumpled but not crushed, and the band of stiff straw that encircled the crown is not broken.

Another arrest in the case is reported to be pending on the charge of being an accessory after the fact.

A search of Mrs. Wilkins' safety deposit box in a Manhattan vault, showed a deed to a half interest in the Long Beach home, but virtually all the rest of her papers have disappeared, it was said. A roll of bills, amounting to about $2,000, was found in the box. Neighborhood gossip had it that Mrs. Wilkins feared robbery, and the hand

SINN FEINERS TO FIGHT FOR INDEPENDENCE UNTIL VICTORY IS WON

COUNT ON SUPPORT BY U. S.

People of Ireland More United Than Ever, Says Professor MacNeill

London, March 20.—The Sinn Feiners, counting on international support and help from America, shall unswervingly continue the struggle for independence until victory is won. Britain must either weigh us down or we must weigh her down."

This statement was made by Professor MacNeill, president of the National University at Dublin and regarded as the intellectual head of the Sinn Fein movement, in the course of an exclusive interview with the Dublin correspondent of the Morning Post. Professor MacNeill has just been released from an English prison.

"If it is a case of going on as we have been doing," said he, "we believe that if Britain has the strength on her side we have toughness on ours. We are in earnest, especially the younger men who say: 'We remember nothing before the war.'

"I do not think England's policy towards us in the past has been wise in any way. She has undoubtedly weakened us for the last seventy-eight years.

"Half of our population has disappeared, and that hasn't happened in any other country of Europe, no matter how badly misgoverned.

"Over a great part of our country our industries have disappeared, with practically nothing left but agriculture.

"England has given special encouragement to her own industries at the expense of ours. The most hopeless thing is to be governed by the popular movement of another country.

"The people are now more than ever united and have a clearer understanding than ever of politics and of their purposes. Their determination is stronger, and they are more prepared to make sacrifices than before. Terms of imprisonment are cheerfully regarded as casualties in the struggle."

Wireless Telephone Message Is Sent Across Atlantic

Special Cable Dispatch.

London, March 20.—The human voice has at last traversed the Atlantic. After many months of preliminary experiments in long distance telephony, a Marconi engineer sat in a wireless hut at Clifden, Ireland, yesterday morning, lifted the receiver and called "Glace Bay."

Instantaneously the answer came:

"Glace Bay talking."

From that moment on continuously Clifden communicated with Nova Scotia, the voices carrying strong and clear all day.

PAINTED FACES DISGRACE, SAYS WOMAN, 100

Cambridge Resident Berates Present Dress Styles; Favors War Bonus Plan

"Rouge, powder, paint, and the general mode of dress adopted by the women and girls of today, are a disgrace to the race!"

Her words ringing with a deep-set conviction, despite the fact that she is celebrating her 100 birthday today, Mrs. Jeanette D. Nesbitt of No. 158 River street, Cambridge, voiced her opinion of the present day womanly ideals.

"I was born in St. Stephens, New Brunswick, one hundred years ago today, and I have lived to see old women and young women walk the streets in Winter with low-cut shoes, silk stockings and dresses up to their knees. Although my eyesight is good, it is hard for me to distinguish between young girls, married women and grandmothers."

SAYS DANCES ALL RIGHT.

"As for dances," she continued, "they are all right if run right and the girls are properly chaperoned.

Dancing is a clean, healthful pastime if properly conducted.

Mrs. Nesbitt lives with her daughter, Mrs. Ella B. Butler. Her husband, son who served in the Civil War and she is interested in matters pertaining to the men in the service. Of the campaign conducted by the Hearst newspapers to secure a bonus of pay for all soldiers, she spoke most highly.

"I saw the hardships that the soldiers went through after the Civil War for the first time, and I hope the American people will grant six months' pay to the boys. It is only what I think the American is doing a splendid work."

DISAPPROVES SUFFRAGE.

Woman suffrage does not find a warm spot in Mrs. Nesbitt's heart.

"I think the place for the women is at home not at the polls," she declared.

Mrs. Nesbitt spoke in the highest terms of the chief executive.

Mrs. Nesbitt sews, knits and reads much of the time. Her daughter, Mrs. Butler, is past president of the Ladies of the G. A. R.

POLISH GOVERNMENT IS THREATENED

By ROBERT J. PREW.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 20.—The new Polish government, headed by Ignace Jan Paderewski, is threatened with collapse if the Ukrainians capture the city of Lemberg, where there has been hard fighting lately, according to information reaching the council of ten from Warsaw today. It was learned from the same source that the Ukrainians may be victorious over the Poles in Lemberg.

In the meanwhile the conference has decided to renew its efforts to induce the Poles and the Ukrainians to agree to an armistice.

The landing of the Polish troops at Danzig will be carried out under the protection of allied warships if the Germans threaten to interfere.

The conference has not yet decided that Lemberg shall be ceded to Poland.

The allocation of shipping for the transportation of the two Polish divisions from France will probably delay the repatriation of American, Canadian and Australian troops.

BRIDE FAINTS AS HUSBAND IS SENTENCED

Taunton Farmer Who Confessed to Wholesale Theft of Autos Given Eleven Months

Providence, March 20.—Mrs. Frank Ferarra, a bride of three months, fainted in Sixth District Court today when her husband, a Taunton farmer, pleaded guilty to wholesale automobile thefts and was sentenced to eleven months in jail. She protested his innocence to the last.

While Judge Howard Gorham was sentencing Ferarra a band of the auto "Raffles" victims in and near Taunton were raiding his home and barn, taking away furniture, wagons, livestock and even hay, to reimburse themselves for their losses. Police were rushed from Taunton to stop the pilfering, but found the house stripped of everything of value.

Twelve of the fourteen stolen machines are parked in the yard of the court building here, under police guard, and their rightful owners have made several attempts to take possession of them, without regard to legal formalities.

Although he had confessed to the theft of fourteen machines in Taunton and near Rhode Island, Ferarra was charged with grand larceny on only three counts. For three days he has been assisting the police to round up the stolen machines, which he had sold to business men, farmers and laborers throughout New England.

Some of the machines he had sold as low as $100. For some he had taken gratuitous furniture and livestock in exchange. It was this loot which the angry farmers of Taunton confiscated in their raid.

Besides the jail sentence, Ferarra was fined $200 and ordered to pay the costs of court.

In his confession in court today, the farmer implicated further thefts in Fall River and Somerset, Mass. He would not tell how he could so completely deceive his neighbors, and camouflage the strange machines which he had on his premises every week, or two.

Ferarra, in his confession, exhibited remorse at the sorrow he had caused his wife, and exonerated her of all knowledge of his operations. His father was also ignorant of the lucrative side-line he had discovered, he said.

WARNING AGAINST SEDITIOUS LANGUAGE

Word was received in radical circles here today that if Edmond MacAlpin of Fall River, associate editor of the Revolutionary Age, used "seditious language," in a speech he is to give tonight in Providence, he will be taken in hand by a vigilance committee of discharged soldiers and sailors.

The Socialist "intellectuals," among whom MacAlpin moves, would not comment upon the rumor, except to say that they had been notified the conference police were informed of the proposed move by the Providence police.

Following a recent address in Providence by James Larkin, in which the steel strike leader is alleged to have made slighting remarks about the government, city officials and former soldiers and sailors got together to prevent the possibility of a recurrence of such remarks.

Men who served abroad openly threatened that the next time such remarks were made in Providence the orator "would be treated to a ride on a rail."

It is expected a police detachment will be in Carpenters' Hall to prevent disorder when the Anti-Anarchy meeting is held under the auspices of the Amnesty League.

Burgue's arms for help attracted the attention of Miss Dorothy Walker of No. 59 Englewood avenue, who called her father and ran into the road. The robbers were described by the young woman as about twenty to twenty-five years of age, all wearing long dark overcoats and carrying umbrellas.

"PUNKY," BABY STAR, MAY BE SEEN IN MOVIES

Baby Annette Stearns, whose mother, traced to New York by her detective-husband, may some day be listed among juvenile film stars—if mother's hopes are realized.

How a professional detective was called upon to trace his own wife, and how a mother's ambition to make a movie star of her three-year-old daughter led her to run away from home, became known with the return of Mrs. Frances Stearns of Roxbury after a week's mysterious absence.

With her seven children, three of whom she took with her, and a collie dog, the family pet, Mrs. Stearns is today at her home, undaunted by the slipping in the bud of her adventure.

She is the wife of Charles H. Stearns, a, former Boston probation officer, of No. 114 Mt. Pleasant avenue, Roxbury. For the past three years the family has lived at No. 635 South street, Roslindale.

Mrs. Stearns disappeared from her home about a week ago, taking with her Charles H. Stearns, Jr., aged twelve; Priscilla, four; Annette, three; and the dog.

DOG FIGURES IN STORY.

Annette and the dog were important figures in the story, for it was on the former's account that the venture was undertaken; and it it was largely by means of the dog that the little runaway group was traced.

Mrs. Stearns, extremely pretty, blonde, vivacious, smartly dressed, and looking more like a schoolgirl than the mother of a family, laughed at the idea that she was "stage struck," and had run away to seek a "movie" job.

"I should say not," she exclaimed to an American representative. "I've been on the stage all my life, and it hasn't any glamour for me. But for my little girl, 'Punky,' I certainly am ambitious."

"PUNKY" A STAR.

"Punky" is Annette, pretty as a picture, potential star and the bright and shining hope of her talented mother. Mrs. Stearns has played in the Castle Square and Waltham Stock Companies.

It was a week ago that Mr. Stearns went home one night to find four of the children—Fred, Gordon, Nathalie and Dolly—waiting for their mother to return. No sign of Mrs. Stearns of the other children.

Stearns went to New York a few days later and found his wife.

Mrs. Stearns comes of a musical family. She was married at sixteen, and her oldest boy was born the following year. She is now only twenty-eight.

The total cost of making the developments of the present undeveloped water powers is stimated at $1,375,000.

WOMEN DRUGGED SOLDIERS TO STEAL MONEY

Federal Agents Investigating Work of Bogus Sergeant and Worcester House

THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 20.—Federal authorities have taken a hand in ridding Worcester of a number of women who have been stealing money and giving drugs and liquor to soldiers in this cantonment.

This became known today when Private Peter Labois, 30th Infantry, 3rd Division, was questioned concerning a house near Summer street in that city. A bogus overseas sergeant, said to be a runner for the house, has been operating in this camp and been inviting soldiers to the house, it was learned.

Labois told the civil and military authorities that he was drugged by one of the Worcester women and while in an unconscious condition was robbed of $60. He recently came here with an overseas detachment.

All enlistments in the temporary forces are for the period of the emergency, reads a telegram received here from the War Department. That period has not yet expired. Consequently, no soldier of the temporary forces is who is discharged at the present time, can be said to have served his entire enlistment period.

This information is given as a result of a request as to whether men who have entered the army for the period of the emergency and who, upon discharge therefrom, enlist in the Regular Army, are entitled to the benefits of the act of May 11, 1908, which provides for continuous service pay and a bonus for re-enlistment. The ruling of the department is in the negative.

Rollcalls at 6 and 6:45 Ordered to Correct Evil at Camp Devens

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 20.—When a representative of the camp inspector's office visited the sleeping quarters of the men of the medical corps attached to the base hospital he found two-thirds of them in bed asleep, it is stated, despite the fact that each man was supposed to be up and dressed for reveille at 6 a. m. As a result of this laxiness of the men two roll calls will be held each day, one at 6 a. m. and another at 6.45 a. m.

The investigation confirms the statement published in the letter signed "Private" in a recent issue of the American, that favorites were allowed to remain in bed, while others had to be up and around on time for reveille.

The inability given conditions as ably outlined in the letter has borne fruit and the food of the men, it is understood, will be better prepared.

The camp chaplains have been invited to attend the dinner to be given this evening to Captain Ernest Hall at the Georgian Hotel, Boston. Captain Hall was formerly camp morale officer.

Mr. Fowler is the janitor at the Bar Harbor High School. Ash said that he was seventy-eight years old and had some work to do, and sometimes found it impossible to get in enough of wood to last through the night.

He said that he didn't chop wood either in the daytime or night as a matter of pleasure and that as far as he was concerned, it was much more convenient to chop in the daytime when possible. The judge found him guilty and assessed him the costs of court.

WHIPPED BRIDE FOR USING UP SUGAR

Mrs. McLeod, Given Divorce, Says Husband Drove Her from Home

Because she helped herself to sugar which her husband had locked up, Mrs. Mary F. McLeod, formerly of Valley Field East, P. E. I., was beaten by him, she testified in court.

She was granted a divorce from William L. McLeod by Judge Hale. She was married to him after a most insulfinding and abusive manner and speech. Nothing she could do seemed to please him.

At 6 in the morning it was her duty to get up, milk fifteen cows, feed 150 hens, seven horses and three children.

In August, 1918, when she wished to do some preserving she requested some sugar, which he kept locked in a chest. He refused her, but after he had gone out she helped herself, giving discovered the key. When he returned he exclaimed, she said: "Damn you, why didn't you ask permission?" She was then seized, she testified, and a beating administered. The final breach came in September, 1918, and ever since she has been unable to induce her husband to give her any for preserving. She went to her father, who gave her money with which she obtained it. When she returned with it her husband, she stated, declared he would have neither the sugar nor herself in the house and ordered her out and away. In fact, she said, he announced that if she didn't get out then she would never get out alive.

NEW LIGHT ON PEGGY MARSH'S ROMANCE

Actress, in Deposition, Says Field Never Claimed Chorus Girl as His Wife

Chicago, March 20.—A deposition made by Beryl Gwynne, an actress of New York, on file in Superior Court here today, throws further light on the international romance of the late Henry Field, grandson of the late Marshall Field, and Pegg. Marsh, former chorus girl whom he met in London, and mother of his child.

In her testimony Miss Gwynne told of her acquaintance with young Field and of his interest in Peggy Marsh. At no time, according to this testimony, did Field claim the chorus girl as his wife nor did she claim him as her husband. The baby was born in London, according to Miss Gwynne and she attended the christening as its godmother. When Peggy Marsh came to America Field followed.

"Miss Marsh never claimed at any time in this country that she was the wife of Henry Field, and never introduced him to anybody as her husband," says the deposition. "The only time I heard him say anything was down at Dark Harbor, and he said he wished he could see some way to marry her."

Last month Captain Marshall Field accepted the $100,000 contract of Henry Field, his brother, whereby the latter was to have provided Peggy Marsh that sum for support of the child. The claim of Peggy Marsh for $100,000 against the Field estate was later withdrawn.

The deposition was taken for the purpose of offsetting any further claim of Peggy Marsh and to show she never claimed Henry Field as her husband and he never claimed her as his wife.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sour ness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestant. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestants.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder of tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaks, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost. All ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness, or ordinary catarrh cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and hence it necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful three times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easily made, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

O'Hanly, known to the police as a "Human Fly" for his ability to scale walls and enter houses, and Dorothy Somers, both twenty-five and both of Roxbury, appeared before Judge Wentworth in the Police Court today, charged with a statutory offence, and after their cases had been placed on file in this court were turned over to Inspector Callahan of the Reading police, where they are wanted for two charges of breaking and entering.

Upon the disposal of their case in Reading they are wanted by the police of Haverhill for two alleged breaks, for two more in Medford and for three in New Haven.

It is said by the police that the method employed by the pair was for O'Hanly to climb drain pipes or other projections and to gain entrance to houses through upper windows while his companion kept watch below.

O'Hanly gave the police a demonstration of his ability at the time of his arrest on the statutory charge. When the police tried to enter the Shawmut avenue room where the two were staying, O'Hanly is said to have climbed out the window and down a water pipe into a window of another house, where the occupants summoned the police, who arrested him.

Stops The Tickle

Heals the Throat and Relieves the Cough. HAYES' HEALING HONEY for Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Tickling Cough, Hard Colds and Croup is advised with every bottle.—Advt.

Six-year-old Norman B. Fankhausen, who was kidnaped in an automobile from Woonsocket Tuesday by his father, Robert West Fankhausen, is now at his father's farm in Edentown, N. J.

The mother, Mrs. Jennie Fankhausen of Woonsocket, received the following telegram today from her husband:

"Norman with me. All right. Will write later."

The telegram was dated at Edentown, where Mr. Fankhausen has a farm and where Mrs. Fankhausen says she left her husband three years ago.

Mrs. Fankhausen said, on receipt of the wire, that she would appeal to the courts to recover her boy.

Another leading feature in the case, which became known today, is that the car in which the boy was spirited away is owned and was driven by Lester W. Brock of No. 6 Rowe street, Auburndale. Mr. Brock is manager of a vacuum sweeper concern at No. 50 Oliver place. He is a cousin of George E. Brock, the Boston bank president, and a former member of the Boston School Committee, and is a friend of Mr. Fankhausen. Mr. Brock and over the telephone today:

"I drove the car." I did it for Mr. Fankhausen. I took him to Woonsocket. I promised him I would not give out details of the case. But the last heard from Mr. Fankhausen he was in New York with the boy."

Owing to a double confusion in the efforts to trace the car by its registration number it was first reported that the car was registered to Albert W. Howe of Highland street in Brockton. This gave rise to report that the missing boy had been taken to Brockton. As a matter of fact, Mr. Howe had nothing to do with the case.

The Fankhausens have been separated three years. Mrs. Fankhausen said later that her neighbor saw the boy and that Mr. Fankhausen was not in the car. But Mr. Brock's version makes it appear that the father was in the car, or at least was right on the scene, so as to get possession of the boy in the end and take him to New Jersey.

MRS. EVANS AIDS STRIKERS AT LAWRENCE

Rich Brookline Social Worker Condemns Attitude of Employers in Wage Controversy

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

"I know that I cannot stop the strike. I am sure that my efforts in that line would be worse than useless, but I feel that by letting in the light of public opinion and by trying to get some human sympathy for the strikers I may be able to do something to relieve conditions that are already bad enough," Mrs. Glendower Evans, who has taken her position with the Lawrence strikers and who has already addressed one big court with them, justifies her attitude.

The fact that Mrs. Evans has large holdings in the Arlington Mills, and that by virtue of these holdings she might be placed with the "capitalist" class, gives point to her stand with the striking workmen and women.

"My own feelings is that the way that the authorities have gone about handling this strike business has been the very way to stir up bad feeling and to generate something that may turn out to be much worse.

TWO WAYS TO HELP.

"I have outlined two ways of getting near to the strikers and their problems, with a view to a real understanding of the situation. In the first place, I have gone around with Mrs. McMeekin, taking milk into the home where there are babies and little children. In this way it is possible to prove to the strikers that some one has some human interest and some sympathy for them and for their families.

"Then I am trying to be present myself when these outbreaks of violence come, and as they occur chiefly in the morning and evening, when the 'scabs' are going to and from their work, I am planning now to go to Lawrence and remain there for several days. By being on the spot when the clubbings take place I can go into court and testify for the strikers—as I have already done.

HAVE BEEN PATIENT.

"It is my belief that the strikers, by and large, have exercised great patience and great self-restraint, all through the strike. I believe that the strike leaders have done everything that they can do to prevent violence and trouble. And I believe just as truly that the other class—the capitalists as we will call it—have been trying to stir up violence and maybe worse."

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, who was recently playing at the Imperial Theatre in St. Louis, Mo., made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ½ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or any druggist can put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

MAN STABBED AT DOOR OF HIS OWN ROOM

East Boston Victim and Woman Companion Tell Conflicting Stories to Police

The mysterious stabbing of Joseph Mattie, 36, in his own home, the disappearance of his wife, and the conflicting stories of himself and members of his household are today being investigated by the police of East Boston.

Mattie was found bleeding profusely in the hallway of his home on Porter street, East Boston, early today, by Dormuto Vellace. He was rushed to East Boston Relief Hospital, where it was found that he had been stabbed in the neck and abdomen, but would live.

Mattie later regained consciousness and gave his version of the stabbing. He said that he, his wife and a girl roomer, Mary Hughes, were in Hanover street last night and that his wife left the party. He and Miss Hughes returned home together and he went to his room. He was called to his door a moment later by a man who immediately drew a knife and slashed at him.

Mattie told the police that he did not know the man's name, but could identify him if he saw him again.

Miss Hughes, who was arrested today, told a story somewhat different. She said that she, Mattie and his wife had been drinking in a hotel and that Mrs. Mattie left early, presumably for home. Her story has caused the police to suspect that Mattie's wife knows the second man who assaulted her husband at the door of his room.

The Right Laxative For The Little Ones—

The natural condition of a child is to be happy and carefree. When the girl mopes and is indifferent to school and study, or the boy is sullen and refuses to go out and play, the child needs laxative to empty the bowels and stir up the liver.

But something should be given that will produce the result in as simple and natural a way as possible. Harsh cathartics and physics are neither necessary nor desirable.

Many mothers have found that the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin produces a free movement of the bowels without griping. A very little is required, and it is pleasant to take. A few hours after its use the child will be its happy self again.

It is an excellent remedy for the mother herself, and for the other members of the family, in obstinate or occasional constipation, for the relief of headaches, as an aid in colds and fevers, minor skin eruptions and all disorders where the basis of the trouble is constipation.

The druggist will refund the money you pay for Syrup Pepsin if it fails to do as promised.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN The Perfect Laxative

PRICE AS ALWAYS

In spite of greatly increased laboratory costs due to the War, by sacrificing profits and observing war times we have maintained the price at which this family laxative has been sold by druggists for the past 6 years. Two sizes—50c and $1.03.

FULL TEXT OF GREAT LODGE-LOWELL DEBATE ON NATIONS LEAGUE

Senator Lodge, taking the side of those who oppose the present world league plans, spoke as follows:

"Your Excellency—Ladies and gentlemen—my fellow citizens:

"I am largely indebted to President Conrad for this opportunity to address this great audience. He and I are friends of many years, both Republicans. He is the president of our great university, one of the most important and influential places in the United States. He is also an eminent student and historian of politics and government.

"He and I may differ as to methods in this great question now before the people, but I am sure that in regard to the security of the peace of the world and the welfare of the United States we do not differ in purposes. (Applause).

WEAPON FOR CONTROVERSY.

"I am going to say a single word, if you will permit me, as to my own position. I have tried to stay it over and over again. I thought I had stated it in plain English. But there are those who find misrepresentation a convenient weapon for controversy, and there are others, most excellent people, who appear to have not seen what I have said and who possibly have misunderstood me. It has been said that I am against any League of Nations. I am not; far from it. (Applause).

"I am anxious to have the nations, the free nations of the world, united in a league. (Applause.) I made a speech in which he brought forward the idea of a League of Nations for the prevention of future wars. In the following June, of 1915, speaking at Harvard on New Year's Day at Commencement, I took up the same idea and discussed the establishment of a League of Nations backed by force. I spoke of it only in general terms. I spoke in favor of it in the following Winter before the meeting of the League to Enforce Peace.

"But the more I considered upon it and the more I studied it the more difficult the problem appeared to me. It became more clear to me that in trying to do too much we might lose all; that there were many obstacles and many dangers in the way; and that it would require the greatest skill and self-restraint on the part of the nations to make any league that would really promote the strength and make more secure the peace of the world.

PERILS IN THE PROPOSITION.

"On January 9, 1917, the President of the United States brought forward a plan for a League to Enforce Peace in an address to the Senate, and, I discussed it at some length, showing the dangers and the possibilities and the perils which it would bring not only to peace, but to the United States.

"During all this time, I may say, I was in close touch with the late Secretary with Theodore Roosevelt in regard to it. His position and mine did not differ at all.

"On December 21 I made a speech in the Senate in which I dealt with the fourteen points and some of the momentous questions raised by the proposition to make a League of Nations.

ROOSEVELT'S LAST WORDS.

"On January 8 of the present year—the Friday before his death—he dictated another editorial, which appeared in the Kansas City Star after his death. I wish time would permit me to read it all, but I can only indicate it by one paragraph:

"Let each nation reserve to itself and for final decision, and let it clearly set forth, questions which are non-justiciable. Finally, make it perfectly clear that we do not intend to take a position of an international "meddlesome attitude." The American people do not wish to go into an ever-seeing war, even for a very great cause, and where the issue is absolutely plain.

"There you see we do not wish to undertake the responsibility of sending our gallant young men to fight across the Balkans or in Central Europe, or in a war we do not approve of. Moreover, there would be no possible use, and no one can people do not intend to give up the Monroe Doctrine.

"HANDS OFF" POLICY.

"Let all Europe and Asia introduces some kind of police system in the weak and disorderly countries at their borders, but let the United States treat Mexico as our Balkan peninsula and refuse to allow the peace of America to interfere on this continent in any way that implies entanglement, or semi-alliance with possession.

"Every one of our allies will with delight assent to the request of President Wilson (chooses to make it, and it will be a great satisfaction if it is so). (Great applause.)

"Two weeks before his death I was with Theodore Roosevelt for several hours, seeing him for two mornings in succession. The draft now before the country was not then before us, but we discussed fully the League of Nations in all its bearings. We were in entire agreement. The position that I have taken, and now take, was his full approval. The line I have followed in the Senate and elsewhere was the line he wished me to have followed.

"I do not say this to transfer any responsibility from my shoulders to his. All I do and all I say is on my own responsibility alone. (Applause.) But it is a help and a strength to me to feel that I have behind me in the approval, I may say, of the great American, the great patriot, the great man he was the wisdom and the unerring judgment, not only to the United States, but to the entire world in this hour. (Applause.)

A WORD ON INCONSISTENCY.

"Now, just a word in regard to inconsistency. I do not think that I have been inconsistent, but it does not matter whether I have or not. Individual consistency can have no relation to the merits of any question. If nobody ever changed his mind, it would be a stagnant world. The only difficulty comes, as it comes with many habits, harmful in moderation, but dangerous in excess.

"When inconsistencies become excessive they are apt to suggest self-seeking and insincerity or lack of real conviction.

"I think it is hardly worth while to discuss inconsistencies. No one can tell where the discussion may lead. (Laughter and applause.) On May 8, 1916, at the unveiling of the Harvey monument in Washington, President Wilson said:

"There are just as vital things stirring now that concern the existence of the nation as were stirring then, and every man who worthily stands in this presence should examine himself and see whether he has the full conception of what it means that America should live her own life.... Washington knew it when he wrote his farewell address. It was not merely because of passing and transient circumstances that Washington said that we must keep free from entangling alliances.' (Applause.)

WHAT WASHINGTON SAID.

"I pause a moment to say that Washington did not say 'entangling' should keep clear from entangling alliances in his Farewell Address. He said that we should keep clear of permanent alliance, and that temporary alliances would be sufficient to met an emergency—as they were in the war just closed. (Applause). Consequently, when any one uses the phrase 'Entangling Alliances,' which is no familiar to the country, was the late Thomas Brackett Reed, speaker in the first inaugural. He warned us from entangling alliances with us. But Washington, I know is considered antiquated by many people. I merely point out that he is not keeping company with Democrats, if any still survive. (Laughter and applause.)

"In Washington, on January 6, 1916, addressing the Pan-American Congress, Mr. Root said: 'The Monroe Doctrine was proclaimed by the United States on her own authority. It was believed to be consistent with and always will be maintained, upon the same authority.' I think that sorry to read so much to you, but we are studying a serious document which may affect for good or evil the welfare of the world for hundreds, perhaps, of years, and it is worth our while to spend a little time in serious and sober consideration of the details of that plan.

"Here are the functions of the executive body, the Executive Council. There are two bodies, the Executive Council and the Body of Delegates. This is the Executive Council, and for the most important of the two. It consists of nine members, to include always representatives of the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy and Japan, these being the large nations in the league, and of three representatives of other nations, so as to represent the interests of the smaller nations to be chosen from the body of delegates—that is, the four other nations are to be nominated by the body of delegates. Now here are the powers of that Executive Council. It is to formulate plans—and I ask you to notice very carefully the exact fashion of these powers, how much they have power to direct or order anything and how much they have power of veto or advise, suggest or recommend, because, as I say, we have adopted in this Constitution of ours and when it says 'advise' or 'recommend' means it.

REDUCTION OF ARMAMENTS.

"It is to formulate plans for the reduction of armaments (Article 8), to advise how the evils of private manufacture of munitions may be prevented (Article 8), to advise upon the means by which the integrity and independence of the members of the League may be preserved in case of aggression or danger of aggression (Article 10); to propose what shall be done if a state fails to carry out the terms of an arbitration to which it has agreed to abide (Article 12); to formulate plans for a permanent court of international justice (Article 14); to inquire into disputes between states and to make recommendations thereon for reference by the matter to the Body of Delegates for the same purpose, and to propose measures to give effect to its own unanimous recommendations in such cases (Article 15).

"If a state goes to war contrary to its covenants and thereby draws upon itself the sanction provided in the agreement of the members, it is the duty of the Executive Council to recommend what military or naval forces of the members of the League shall severally contribute to protect the covenants of the League (Article 16).

"The council can further prescribe the conditions upon which a State not a member of the league may be admitted; but so far as the members of the league are concerned, it is strictly limited, you notice, to consultation and making recommendations which the members of the league are under no obligations, legal or moral, to accept unless they please to do so when it says they shall make recommendations, again I must rub it in that I make that point, when it says—that they are to recommend, which does not mean that anybody is under any obligation to do it, nothing to conform to them unless it thinks it wise and best so to do.

ONLY THREE CASES.

"I can in fact find only three cases in which a decision or anything in the nature of a decision by the council has any effect whatever, and that of a recommendation which each State in the council may or not as it pleases. Those three cases are, first, that where it inquires into a dispute between two States and makes a unanimous, except for the members parties to the dispute, then no nation can go to war with any party to the award. That is the first case. In other words, when it sits in a judicial capacity and is unanimous the members of the league cannot go to war against that award.

"The second case is that if its proposals for a reduction of armaments are accepted by all the nations, any nation which accepts that plan cannot afterwards increase its armaments without the consent of the Executive Council. But that only happens after the nation has consented to accept that plan for the reduction of armament.

"The third case is, if a state is found to be a mandatory for a backward nation, that where certain conditions are prescribed by the executive council. It has been suggested by some people that a state is bound to become a mandatory. That does not seem to me—it certainly does not say so and I am not sure that it ought to be read to imply it.

"For instance, suppose the executive council were to ask Italy or the United States—well, I will leave out the United States, because I would not dream—suppose they were to ask Italy or Czecho-Slovakia or Serbia to be mandatory for Armenia, or Italy for Asia Minor, or Italy for Palestine, or England, or by France, or by Spain, or by Japan, or by Italy, or anyone else in question, is there in it a good plan for us to adopt? I think that we ought to debate that question and raise passion by asking whose plan it was. (Applause.)

TWO WAYS OF FORMING LEAGUE.

"Now, there are two possible ways of forming a league of this kind. One is agreement on the part of the members to do certain things. I mean do certain things automatically, to do certain things on the happening of certain events; and that is merely a representative body. The other is where you get power into the hands of representatives to deliberate and draws upon itself the sanction provided in the agreement of the members. It is the duty of the Executive Council to recommend what military or naval forces of the members of the League shall severally contribute to protect the covenants of the League (Article 10).

"The council can further prescribe the conditions upon which a State not a member of the league may be admitted; but so far as the members of the league are concerned, it is strictly limited, you notice, to consultation and making recommendations which the members of the league are under no obligations, legal or moral, to accept unless they please to do so when it says they shall make recommendations, again I must rub it in that I make that point, when it says—that they are to recommend, which does not mean that anybody is under any obligation to do it, nothing to conform to them unless it thinks it wise and best so to do.

Nations agreed upon by the Commission of the Peace Conference."

"It is interesting, as President Lowell set out also with great clearness in his speech that he is in favor of the principle, but not of the particulars provided for in the present draft of the league, and that Senator Lodge is opposed to the particulars as set out in his speech also, but not opposed to a league for peace purposes."

SHERMAN L. WHIPPLE:

"It was my judgment that the audience agreed with the position of both the speakers, aside from a certain degree of partisanship which would influence one part of the audience one way and another part another way. The absence of anything like partisanship was a striking feature of the discussion, and no one could have heard these two eminent sons of Massachusetts without feeling that neither one was seeking a personal advantage or swayed by any motive other than a sincere and deeply patriotic desire to promote the well being of his country. Each recognized that no nation lives unto itself alone, but that there is a responsibility reaching beyond the geographical borders which cannot be avoided, which must be faced, and the burden of which must be borne.

"The practical accomplishment aside from the discussion was the assurance given by Senator Lodge to the question of President Lowell that he would gladly support a treaty for a league of nations which was properly drawn, and the assurance that if the opportunity were given him to act in his official capacity as a United States Senator he would propose amendments to the present document so as to make it meet with his approval."

"The applause for President Lowell seemed to me to be genuine applause for the cause which he advocated. Some of this applause was of course personal because of his very agreeable personality and bright wit, but it seemed to me that the audience at large favored his side rather than that of his opponent. While the applause for the Senator was very enthusiastic, it seemed to me to be personal rather than approval of what he said. I think that his friends were disappointed in what he said. He lacked sincerity in his expression. He seemed to be conscious that the cause he was agitating was unpopular. He did not seem to dare to say about it the things he evidently wanted to say.

"That handicapped him very severely. Therefore, about the only effective thing he said was that he hoped the people would be very careful before they took any step. Everybody agrees with that, but it doesn't mean anything."

COURTENAY CROCKER:

"It was a magnificent meeting, extremely interesting with President Lowell's argument wonderfully clear and logical. Senator Lodge, as usual, delivered a brilliant argument, but he did not come within a mile of the issue. He left everybody guessing as to just where he really does stand on the League of Nations idea. If anything, he suggested by his argument that he is so extreme in his nationalism as to be unable to reconciled to a league of nations."

J. MITCHELL GALVIN:

"I have always acknowledged the Senator's pre-eminent ability as a statesman. Last night he presented his views on his subject in such a manner that there can be no doubt as to how the League of Nations idea in its present form will be received by the American people."

GEORGE S. SMITH:

"The debate last night between Senator Lodge and President Lowell demonstrated that people are not very far apart in the earnest hope for a permanent peace."

JUDGE GEORGE W. ANDERSON:

"I was gratified to learn from Senator Lodge's own lips that he is in favor of a league of nations and to note that no substantative provision in the covenant calls forth any criticism from him. He did not suggest any substantial change either in the executive council or in the body of delegates. This was most gratifying to those who believe we ought not to have another war in which America may be called upon to furnish, not 5,000,000 of our best youth by conscription because of our vital interest in world affairs, but more likely ten or twenty millions.

"It is extraordinary just as we are demobilizing the American army of 3,000,000 and paying taxes at the rate of six or eight billions of dollars a year, intelligent people are discussing whether we have any interest in world affairs or world peace."

REV. DR. EDWARD CUMMINGS:

"Perfectly satisfied. I was one of Mr. Lowell's representatives, so that the inference is quite clear."

JOHN F. MOORE:

"I think Mr. Lowell had the better of it."

MRS. HAROLD COOLIDGE:

"The League of Nations won the debate! It is my idea that both Senator Lodge and President Lowell talked for the league, but from different points of view. The point, according to my view of it, was that the debate was intended for the information of the public, and it gave that information. The audience showed that it was being informed on difficult points by the manner in which it impartially applauded both speakers."

MRS. BARRETT WENDELL:

"Neither Senator Lodge nor President Lowell won the debate. The two men argued fundamentally, and it could not truthfully be said that either won. The debate was a wonderful thing. It was planned for the information of the public, and it certainly did the thing that it was intended to do."

JOSIAH QUINCY:

"President Lowell won the debate, in my opinion, by means of his usually high standard of debate in Symphony Hall, partly for the reason that his case rested upon a very strong foundation. I think that he presented the fundamental and controlling reasons in favor of the league very skilfully. Senator Lodge, of course, presented his case with great ability. In my opinion, he was greatly handicapped by the inherent weakness of his position."

MISS FANNY MASON:

"I think it would be impossible for any spectator to say who won the debate, I am sure, I do not know. They were most evenly matched, I should say. I think neither one nor the other won it.

MAYOR PETERS:

"The people went away strengthened in their belief in the soundness of the principles of the league."

MRS. VICTOR LORING, Wellesley:

"I was in sympathy with the views of Senator Lodge before I attended the debate. After listening to him and to President Lowell I found that my sympathies had not changed at all. I am still in sympathy with his views."

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR CHANNING H. COX:

"I do not think it was a debate; that is, they did not take opposite sides of the same question, and they both showed how easily a form of League of Nations could be drafted, which would be acceptable to substantially all of the American people. I hope our representatives in Paris will read the discussion and profit thereby."

JOSEPH F. O'CONNELL:

"In my judgment, Senator Lodge had the better of the argument. The debate itself presented somewhat of an anomaly—so far as the features were concerned—because both men were in agreement as to the principle, namely, that a League of Nations is desirable. They both agreed that the present form of the covenant is indefensible because of its defects. It seems conclusive that Senator Lodge had the better end of it. I feel that he showed that the present draft of the League of Nations is altogether defective and could not be adopted and would be a menace and a grave peril to the welfare of our republic if adopted."

R. R. FLYNN:

"I felt that the debate was a pretty even proposition. One point that very much favored Senator Lodge was the question which he raised as to the league covenant being a violation of the terms of the Constitution—a violation of the treaty-making powers of the President and the Senate. In this connection Senator Lodge showed that the President did not follow tradition. It was a good point and up to that juncture the debate was about even. It was a wonderful feast of eloquence by two men well versed in letters and law."

FRANCIS J. W. FORD:

"Without any question of doubt President Lowell won the debate. It is settled for all time so far as public opinion is concerned that a league of nations we must and shall have. The most significant feature of the debate, it seems to me, was President Lowell's interrogation of Senator Lodge as to whether he would vote for a league if the draft were amended to meet his objections, and Senator Lodge's affirmative reply that there can be no question but that the Senate would ratify the league."

SHERIFF JOHN A. KELIHER:

"The debate was no debate at all, since both men seemed to agree there should be a league of nations, while they held practically the same opinion on the major features of the league desired."

JUDGE EDGAR ALDRICH:

"I do not wish to say anything about the question you ask as to who won the debate, but it was a useful discussion of the paramount question now before the people of the United States, and the practical result of it was, as both of the distinguished gentlemen agree that there should be a proper association of nations which, under necessary safeguards, will make for peace; and, moreover, they both concede that the present draft is not workable and must be changed before the desired result can be attained.

"Now, where and when are these essential changes to be made, and who is to voice them?

"I see no greater propriety in asking Senator Lodge, as a single Senator, to send a draft over to Paris which would meet the objections that he makes to the present proposed league than in asking President Lowell to send one which would cure the defects and obscurities which he pointed out."

FRANCIS A. CAMPBELL:

"I think Mr. Lodge was greatly handicapped by a gentlemen's agreement and that he did not do himself full justice. President Lowell seemed to have the better of the debate. The admission by Senator Lodge that he was in favor of a league was also a handicap to the Senator. Senator Lodge seemed to argue against himself. He did not have that great force and vim which he displays when speaking on a question he favors."

HENRY B. ENDICOTT:

"I don't think Senator Lodge did himself justice, or possibly it was because he did not feel at all satisfied with his position. I came away with the feeling that Senator Lodge had allowed his partisanship make him take a position who his rather regretted, and which position he was trying to change a little before the people of Massachusetts. He rather complained that it was hard for people to understand him, and claimed that he was in favor of the League properly drawn up,' etc.

"I think, indirectly, that Senator Lodge, in his final remarks, showed the real reason of his taking the position which he started out to take, and that reason was Wilson—Wilson did not consult the Senate to the proper manner as he undoubtedly should have consulted them.

"I agree perfectly with the Senator, and it seems to me that it was very poor judgment for Wilson not to have done this, but is this any reason at all why Senator Lodge shouldn't have turned around and done everything he could to 'whip' this document into shape so that it would accomplish what we all want? It seems to me childish because not being consulted some of these Senators sat back, and not only did not try and help, but tried to obstruct.

On the other hand, President Lowell, in his democratic way, cheering all the applause possible, brought the real facts out so clearly that anybody could understand them. He showed all through the debate the earnest man—the man who had just one object in view, regardless of who were instrumental in bringing this League of Nations to life. His whole thought and prayer was to keep the world from wars, and he fully realized that this was the time to do it, and save the small nations from going back into conditions as bad or worse than they were before the war.

"One side was oratory and the other was earnestness and truth."

Cocoanut Oil Makes a Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last every one in the family for months.—Advertisement.

"Go ahead" with consumption, with building and furnishing American homes and promoting industries—that's everyone's job.

SAY DANCE HALL IN BROCKTON IS MENACE

Judge Chamberlain's Denunciation From Bench Endorsed by Social Workers

Brockton, March 20.—Judge Lloyd E. Chamberlain's condemnation of the public dance as a menace to morals here has struck a popular chord.

It was delivered at a hearing before him in a Probate Court, when a returned soldier sought the custody of a baby born to an unmarried girl of 20, on the ground that she was not a proper person to keep the child. Said the judge:

"It is apparent that a loose condition of morals exists among many of the young people who frequent the dance halls. The conditions are deplorable."

Rev. James Holmes, pastor of the First Baptist Church, applauds Judge Chamberlain's stand. "Every word he uttered is true," said the minister. "I have been roundly denounced for my attitude on the dance hall evil, but I have the proof and conviction to back up these statements. I am convinced that out of every thousand cases of white slavery the majority are traced directly to the dance halls. I hear relative of mine who is matron of the rescue home in Montreal corroborates that theory.

"No, sir, you can't make the dance halls respectable any more than you can whiskey by selling it over the gilded mahogany bar."

Miss Louise McGlynn, social worker for the Brockton Catholic Charities Centre, said:

"Social conditions in Brockton are bad. Let us hope that Judge Chamberlain's remarks may lead to a social housecleaning here, which is surely needed."

ALLEGED DYNAMITERS ARE HELD IN MILFORD

Milford, March 20.—Charged with being implicated in I. W. W. activities that are believed to include a nation-wide plot to blow up industries, Sabino Fantoni and Antonio Tartaglia, mill workers, were held in $100 bail for hearing next Tuesday by Judge Cook in court today. The men were caught in Manchester, Ct., on a clew from a sensational raid of a house on Water street, Milford, in which dynamite and I. W. W. literature were found.

In addition Miss Sherburne won the Alpha Omicron Pi prize scholarship and Miss Marland, the Xi Delta scholarship.

ASHLEY SCORES CIVIL SERVICE BOARD

New Bedford Mayor Predicts Wave of Bolshevism Unless Labor Problem Is Solved

Charles S. Ashley, Mayor of New Bedford, today denounced the Civil Service Commission as lacking "pep," "vision" and "initiative." He spoke at a hearing in the investigation of the commission. "There'll be another war before this board allows work to be provided for the returning soldiers, sailors and marines," he said.

"If we don't take care of labor there is going to be a wave of Bolshevism. In New Bedford we appropriated $1,400,000 for new public work for the soldiers. While we are putting men at work—many in violation of the civil service laws—the commission and the Legislature are in a trance."

He told incidents of "grave laxity." He said the commission last year sent him five names and asked if the men were still on the reserve police force. One of the men has been in the liquor business in Rhode Island since 1908, another went to war and the other three were promoted to permanent officers twelve years ago.

Mrs. Davis R. Dewey of the State Board of Labor and Industries said the Legislature authorized the board to employ six additional health inspectors in February, 1918. She said the commission held up the appointees "for a physical examination" until September 4 and the "examination" consisted of placing a stethoscope over the heart and pronouncing the appointees in "perfect health."

F. E. Donovan of Somerville said Mayor Eldridge "manipulated" the Commission to appoint two fire department "chauffers" who don't know how to drive a car.

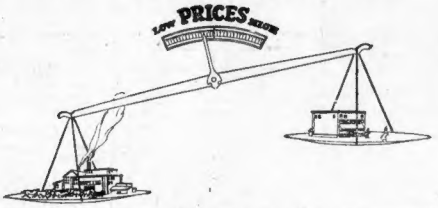
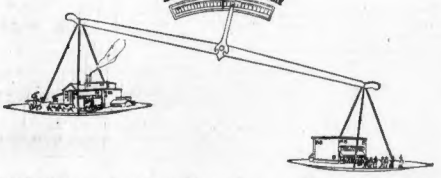
Why Prices Go Up and Down



Much Livestock, Few Meat Buyers; Meat Prices Fall



Little Livestock, Many Meat Buyers; Meat Prices Rise

This shows why prices fluctuate. The number of animals shipped to market varies from week to week. The demand for meat also changes frequently, and often unexpectedly.

This means that live-stock prices and wholesale meat prices change from day to day. Competition determines prices so that the supply on hand at any one time is just taken up by the demand.

Swift & Company doesn't like these price changes. We have to use the utmost skill in buying and selling in order to get our average profit of a fraction of a cent per pound of meat.

FOOD STORAGE 46,000,000 POUNDS

Report of the Massachusetts State Department of Health just issued shows that more than 46,000,000 pounds of foodstuffs were placed in cold storage in Massachusetts storage warehouses during January and February of this year.

This is more than twice as much as was placed in the same Massachusetts storage warehouses during the corresponding months of 1918.

Despite the enormous increase for January and February of this year, four months after the signing of the armistice, the prices of foodstuffs to the consumers are still war heights.

The increase in 1919 deposits of meats during these two months, compared with the same months last year, is specially noticeable.

The total deposit of fresh meat in the State cold storage plants during January and February of 1918 amounted to nearly 12,000,000 pounds.

TRIPLED DEPOSITS FOR 1919.

But the total deposits of fresh meat in Massachusetts storage warehouses for this January and February jumped to more than 36,000,000 pounds, or three times the 1918 deposits for those two months.

The Health Department report also shows that 3,966,574 pounds of butter were held in storage in this State on March 1, 1919, compared with 3,752,-992 pounds held in storage on that date last year.

A year ago the demands of war and the belief that the contest would run into this Spring or Summer caused tremendous storage of food products, a tight market and record prices.

But now, with nearly the same amount of butter held in storage, war conditions have changed but butter prices still run high.

The last wholesale quotations on the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange are as follows:

	Per lb.
Butter (print)	66c
Butter (tub)	65c
Eggs, nearby	per doz. 47c
Eggs, Western-first	per doz. 42c

HEALTH DEPARTMENT REPORT.

The report issued by the State Health Department reads as follows:

"The cold storage warehouses in Massachusetts have reported to the Massachusetts State Department of Health deposits of food amounting to about 20,250,000 pounds, of which 52 per cent. was meat and meat products, 6 per cent. was butter and 9 per cent. was fish.

"For purposes of comparison the figures for January and February, 1918 and 1919, are given:

January	1918.	1919.

*Totals	10,330,587	20,203,366

*Inasmuch as the contents of one dozen eggs averages one pound, the dozens of eggs are added as pounds.

"The holdings of butter and eggs follow the usual seasonable variations. Figures for March 1, 1918, and 1919, are as follows:

DELICACIES FOR 26TH BOYS ON STAY HERE

While apple pie and ice cream will not be included on the menus for the two-days' stay in Boston of the boys of the 26th Division on their return from France, pineapples, jam, peaches, ginger snaps and other "goodies" have been included on the list prepared by the Quartermaster Department at army headquarters.

Providence, March 20.—A gang of robbers boarded a New York, New Haven & Hartford train, stopped it at Centreville by manipulating the air brakes, and were then frightened away by the crew before they could loot the freight cars. SUBURBS FLOCK TO COST PRICE FISH MARTS

Boston American fish stores are doing a tremendous business. Tons of fresh haddock, tons of mackerel, herring, flounders, whiting, cod, finnan haddie and other frozen fish are being sold daily.

People flock from Malden, Medford, Winthrop, Revere, Brookline, Hyde Park and other sections to the stores already opened in and around Boston to buy fish at cost.

RETAIL DEALERS FRANTIC.

The retail fish market. Dealers in sections served by Boston American stores have reduced their prices on a few varieties in a frantic effort to keep the favor of the public. They are resorting to every possible means to deceive the public in regard to the fish on sale in Boston American fish stores.

The food on sale, with the exception of haddock, is frozen fish. It was frozen right after being caught. The mackerel, for example, is the same for which profiteering retailers have been charging as high as thirty-five cents a pound and for which today they are asking fifteen and twenty cents a pound.

PROFITEERING IN WORCESTER.

It is being put on the market at cost by the Boston American in an effort to offer the public a chance to reduce the cost of living, and also to educate the people for a more extended use of fish as a food.

Letters reciting the American's fish selling tells of dealers profiteering in Worcester and other cities where Boston American stores have not yet been established. In localities where the stores have been established the price of all varieties of fish has dropped from 25 to 75 per cent. Every effort is being made to rush the establishment of Boston American Fish Stores in localities not yet served.

LEAGUE TO RID WORLD OF WARS, SAYS MAURICE

New York, March 20.—"The one thing that Great Britain fought for was to make war impossible; I think there is some hope of achieving that ideal through the League of Nations, and no hope of achieving it in no other way." This declares Major-General Sir Frederick B. Maurice, director of military operations of the imperial general staff of Great Britain from 1915 to 1918, who is here today from Halifax.

SEES U.S. WINNER IN OVERSEAS AIR RIVALRY

By JOHN K. GOWEN, JR.,
Reserve Military Aviator.

Thousands of skeptics regard a transatlantic flight as a mere possibility—even in the face of a dual attempt to be made within a few days by American and British pilots.

Experienced airmen will tell you that the first transatlantic flight will be made this year, and that American airmen piloting American-made machines driven by American engines, will make it.

SUCCESS ASSURED.

I believe they will. American pilots have skill and indomitable courage. The best proof of this is afforded in the fact that there are scores of young Americans who would leap at the chance to pilot the first plane across the Atlantic.

Problems of engine efficiency were largely solved by war-born developments, notably the Liberty motor of twelve cylinders and better than 400 horse-power. In a transatlantic flight other problems present themselves which are in a fair way to being solved—problems of fuel storage and of continuous navigation at high speed over storm-swept seas.

Opponents of the venture point out that the human factor, the pilot and the navigator, would not be able to stand the strain.

The human factor will stand the strain. It will be tremendous, but it will be comparatively brief. With a competent relief, the pilot and navigator can snatch enough sleep en route to stay them through the twenty-four hours of flight. This should be the maximum time for the 1,960 miles, which is the shortest stretch of water from shore to shore.

SEAPLANES BEST EQUIPPED.

Because of the necessity to keep afloat in case anything goes wrong, the first transatlantic flights undoubtedly will be made by huge seaplanes, or land ships converted for the purpose by the addition of pontoons. But although it is widely reported that the gigantic type of dirigibles is being seriously considered for ocean greyhound use, it is improbable that the first big flights will be made by either a rigid or semi-rigid dirigible.

Weather sharps point out that at no time is the broad surface of the Atlantic free from storms, and in making a crossing the dirigible of less power and unwieldy command is the heavier-than-air machine, would be severely handicapped.

The United States and Great Britain are keen competitors for the honor of the first flight, and the $50,000 offered by the London Daily Mail is sufficient inducement to almost any pilot to make the attempt, even were there no honor to be gained.

From London comes the announcement that Harry Hawker, pilot, and Commander MacKenzie Grieve, Royal Navy, navigator, have sailed for St. John's, N. F., with a secretly built airplane, in which they plan to make the attempt. The machine is said to be a Sopwith two-seater biplane, with boat-shaped fuselage, capable of supporting the machine in the water. The motor has 375 horsepower.

CHANCES AGAINST HAWKER.

Speaking from an unbiased standpoint, the chances are against Hawker's success. When he "gives her the gun" and takes off at Newfoundland for his long flight he will be taking what the British are pleased to call "a sporting chance." He may make it—but with one motor it is probable that he will fail.

From Norfolk comes the news that the United States is not to be outdone. Lieutenant Commander Patrick N. L. Bellinger, former commanding officer of the air station of the naval operating base at Hampton Roads, and announced as "the navy's best aviator," has been chosen to pilot one of our great flying boats across the Atlantic. He will start from Hampton Roads within a few days, heading for Bermuda, a distance of 800 miles, and from there toward the Irish coast, 1,600 miles away.

Commander Bellinger puts better than "a sporting chance" to make a successful flight. The odds are better than even that he will get across. If he doesn't, the experience of the flight will show the reasons for failure to be mechanical.

BOTH PILOTS HEROES.

The United States made the airplane possible. And American ingenuity and American mechanical skill, coupled with American pilots, cannot be beaten.

If Bellinger fails, it is more than probable that the British pilot who tries will succeed, having profited by his experience and having corrected the defects.

Both of these pilots are heroes in the truest sense. Without regard for themselves, and knowing full well that they are embarking on a project fraught with danger at every turn, they face the ordeal undaunted, in order that civilization may advance.

The American stands the best chance of the two to win. If he cannot win, may the British flier make a successful crossing, for the transatlantic flight should not be longer delayed.

Two nations will watch the coming race with intense interest.

The Pass, Manitoba, March 20.—After "mushing" 1,100 miles over the snows, Sergeant Thompson of the Royal Northwestern Mounted Police has arrived here with an insane Indian lashed to his dog sled. The dogs were so weak from hunger that they could barely haul the heavy sleds, and mutinied out on the trail, only to be cajoled or beaten back into subjection. The Indian was brought from Trout Lake, near Hudson Bay.

ARLINGTON WOMEN PLAY MEN'S ROLES

The annual home talent afternoon of the Arlington Women's Club, under the direction of the club's dramatic committee, was held in the Town Hall. Two one-act plays were successfully staged. Miss Lena Winifred Lenk, chairman of the dramatic committee, had entire charge of both productions.

The first play was "Joint Partners in Spain," by Miss Alice Brown, and the other was an Irish play, entitled "Spreading the News," by Lady Gregory. In the latter play, there were seven male roles and these were all impersonated with much cleverness by women of the club.

PETERSON'S OINTMENT BEST FOR ECZEMA

First Application Stops Itching of Eczema, Salt Rheum and Piles

I was afflicted with eczema for years. I tried many remedies and treatments, but got no relief. I finally sent for a sample of Peterson's Ointment and got relief from the first application. I purchased a box and got entirely cured. I have had no return of the disease in the past two years. I am truly thankful that I ever got hold of Peterson's Ointment, for it cured me when all else failed. I am a poor man and cannot afford to pay a doctor's bill, but I would gladly pay $5 a box for Peterson's Ointment if I could not get it for less money. GALLI-CURCI IN FAVOR OF WAR BONUS

Essex County Notables Declare for Six Months' Pay for Soldiers

Amelita Galli-Curci, famed song bird who has held two large Boston audiences enthralled by her art with a few days' sojourn, interested herself in the six months' pay petition for soldiers, sailors and marines, as announced by the Boston American.

The operatic star whose singing has made them brought her fame and fortune declares that a grateful nation has very little to give the soldiers and sailors in return for what they have given their country.

"I am not interested in the effort being made to induce Congress to pay a bonus of six months' pay to honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines," the singer declared just before leaving Boston, where she appeared before capacity houses.

LITTLE FOR SERVICES GIVEN.

"It seems very little to do for the brave boys who gave so generously the entire efforts. I am sure that our country will not fail to extend this aid," she said.

James W. Falk, secretary of the American Board of Assessors in West Medford, honorary major and Judge Charles F. Perkins of the same town a justice in the second district Court of Essex and captain of Company H, 16th Regiment Massachusetts State Guard, declares he favors the principle involved.

"I am in favor of anything such as is proposed for the American boys that is discharged so often and earns the small pay it brings enough to give the boys a chance to get upon their feet," secretary Falk writes.

From my observations I find that often the boys return in the spring and offers have been filed, and the service office has been called to find employment somewhere after times at work with he is promised. Under these conditions a county would be no more than just.

The soldiers and sailors themselves do are that the efforts to put base on the part of those who have given years of outgrown to their own robust, developing their best and the best of those whose unfortunate are so located by the loaning of a few months' pay to purchase necessities of the five steam displays of life.

The new uniform must be purchased the first day of their discharge as the Government is authorized to wear any uniform not issued to them in service. This means large sums of cash.

Said are should not be compelled to take their jobs as offers but could do the work for which they are best fitted, in the opinion of Judge Falk.

Regarding the plan to give six months' pay to soldiers upon the completion of their service, I will say that I am in favor of the proposition and would greatly appreciate its return.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War.
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

Tells How to Stop a Bad Cough

If you have a severe cough or chest cold, accompanied with soreness, throat tickle, hoarseness, or difficult breathing, or if your child wakes up during the night with croup and you want quick help, try this reliable old home-made cough remedy. Any druggist can supply you with the ingredients for a full pint of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or you can use sugar and molasses honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes a pint of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and relieves the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membranes that cause the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "3½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guarantee to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

New Mitchell Sixes

Only New Six At The Show

New Victory Model

The new Mitchell Six has been the hit of every show this season. We have it here for this show—the only new Six on exhibit.

Not merely a new model—a new criterion. A radical revision of the Light Six type. A complete indication of what able engineers can do in this type.

Over 100 Improvements

This is the most radical advance in this class since the Light Six first appeared. There are more than 100 important improvements.

By actual tests, there is 50% more strength, 75% more endurance, 25% more economy.

There is more beauty, more comfort, more room. The car is new in lines, color and finish, in upholstery, in top. It is new in up-to-date features. Not in many years has anyone seen so many new ideas in a car.

Based on New Standards

The history of the car is this.

Two years ago Mitchell engineers decided that Light Six standards in general were not high enough. Too much had been sacrificed to lightness, and too much to price. Men of today, who buy cars to keep, look for higher standards.

The Mitchell people pioneered the Six. And they decided that as leaders they should lead in this advance.

That was two years ago. A staff of able engineers, experts and specialists have been working on this car ever since. During wartime, when the Mitchell factory ran on trucks, they had their chance to perfect this car, so it is ready before they expected.

Some Things They Did

Part by part they have added 50 per cent. to the strength. They have added 75 per cent. to brake efficiency. There is a new body, with new lines and new finish. There are new features, new luxuries, a de-luxe top.

There is a thermostat to control the temperature of liquids, air and gas. There is a new motor construction. These, with other features, reduce fuel cost 25 per cent.

Nearly every detail shows finer workmanship. Nearly every part gets more radical tests. Over $250,000 was spent in new machinery and equipment for this purpose. A staff of 135 inspectors has been trained to watch every detail of the car's construction.

Yet the Lowest Price

There are more than 100 of these costly improvements, made while rival cars stood still. Yet this new Mitchell undersells any Six of like size, power and class.

That fact is a marvel of Mitchell efficiency. The complete car is built in a model plant—motor, chassis and body. It is built under scientific cost-producing methods. The result is a value which stands alone in this type of car today.

See all these new conceptions. They are the most interesting things at the show.

How would you build a motor truck?

Lay out a set of truck specifications that satisfy you—then compare them with the Atterbury specifications.

Your haulage problems are different from those of other firms.

And you should have your own ideas of what a truck should be and do.

But if you designed a truck to fit your business—and selected each unit to give you the maximum service and economy—

—you could lay your specifications beside the Atterbury specifications, and they would agree in every important detail.

WORMS IN GOLLUF.

EARLY bird gets the worm and the early golfer gets the worm cast.

IF there is anything that gets a golfer madder than prohibition, it is to have a four-put. It is next to being run down in the middle of the street by a truck. When a worm starts tracking a golf ball over the fairway, he leaves a trail of cinders back over his course, like a B. & O. freight engine. This makes a nice corrugated spot. But in No Putter's Land. When a golf ball hits a worm avenue, it goes demoralized and careens off to fourteen different points.

THE early bird may get the worm, but he doesn't get him early enough to suit the early golfuer.

One of the Newest and Best Novels of Intrigue, Love and War From This Famous Author's Pen, Full of Vivid Human Interest

Synopsis of the Story So Far

Ruhannah Carew, born in Trebizond, daughter of an American missionary, Reverend Wilbour Carew accompanies her parents to their old home in Catskill, New York State, after the father had been crippled by a Mohammedan fanatic. Her favorite amusement is playing with the wonder box of the late Herr Conrad Wilner, a few pages of whose diary are always read to her father or mother to be as a bedtime story. The box contains treasures with which Ruhannah and Sindi like to play. She learns from the diary that Wilner saw the box being dropped from a yacht in the Bosphorus and fished it up with the body of a beautiful girl sewn in a sack.

Wilner, as an agent of the German government, makes plans for fortifying Gallipoli. The duplicates of these are stolen and he gets evidence that the Turks seek his life. He gives the box to Rev. Mr. Carew for safe keeping with instructions to send the plans to Berlin in case he is killed. He is stoned to death, but Mr Carew keeps the papers. He as she grows up, longs to be an artist, but the family has only a pension and it is decided she must go to work.

ROYAL DUTCH ISSUES A FEATURE

Strong and Active When Declines Are the Rule; Shipping Issues Recede

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York in the afternoon, with a tendency to recede further. After showing gains as a rule during the morning, with hesitancy marking the opening, most issues reacted at midday in the next hour prices averaged the lowest for the day. Steels were adversely affected by uncertainty as to the outcome of the price conference at Washington between manufacturers and the industrial board of the Department of Commerce. This was a deterrent to trading and was reflected throughout the list. Need of government money unsettled rails. Tobacco coppers were firmer, they were inactive. Oils and sugars were strong during the morning, but the afternoon recessional reduced their gains. Corn Products had sold at its record high-est price and American Sugar at the highest since 1917. Trading was on a much smaller scale than previously this week.

Royal Dutch shares, old and new, were strong and active. Other shipping stocks sagged. Tobacco lost their gains. It is said there will be a public offering of additional shares nor any subscription rights if United Cigar Stores doubles its common to $60,000,000." Money was firmer. By noon the call rate on mixed collateral was 6 per cent; on industrials, 6½ per cent.

AFTERNOON GAINS AND LOSSES.

Declines in the afternoon included Marine preferred, 1% at 112; Atlantic gulf 1 at 114⅝; Bethlehem B 1 at 65½; U. S. Steel ¾ at 95½; General Motors ¾ at 160⅞; Maxwell 1⅜ at 37; Studebaker 1⅜ at 61⅜; United Cigar Stores 1 at 133¼; Sumatra 2 at 113; Distillers ¾ at 64⅞; Goodrich 1⅜ at 66⅛; U. S. Rubber 1½ at 83½; St. Paul 1¼ at 37; Reading ¾ at 84¼; Union Pacific ¼ at 129; Texas Co. ¾ at 213, and International Paper 1 at 45½.

Among gains were Royal Dutch (old) 2¾ at 95¾, (new) 2¾ at 91⅜; Industrial Alcohol 1⅝ at 144; Corn Products ½ at 54⅝, after selling at the record high price of 55; International Corporation ½ at 37½; American Sugar 1⅞ at 123, after selling at 124⅝, its highest since 1917; Southern Pacific ½ at 101⅝; Tobacco Products ¾ at 83½ and Mexican Petroleum 1¼ at 154½.

MASS. ELECTRIC AT NEW LOW.

At the opening in Boston price irregularity marked the list, with the tone a trifle easier. Trading was narrow, and on a small scale. Massachusetts Electric issues were the features as regards activity, and preferred sold at the new lowest record price of 51-16. Bosch Magneto sold at the highest record price of 47¾. There was moderate trading in American Telephone.

MARKET STRONGER AT START.

The market was stronger at the opening today than at the close yesterday, and while buying from the outside continued there was also support in the shape of extensive covering. Uncertainty as to what will be done about steel product prices was reflected by a slight decline for U. S. Steel at the start. It is thought that building will begin on a large scale if steel manufacturers will reduce prices sufficiently to start government and corporation buying of their commodity. When producers and consumers know what prices are to be, it is believed that the country's business will show immediate improvement.

ALCOHOLS MADE EARLY GAINS.

In early trading there were gains for alcohol issues and coppers were a shade stronger as a group, although quiet. Shipping stocks were firm and rails were sluggish. The movement of steels was narrow and uninteresting. Trading was of good volume at the start and good activities in a number of issues remained a dominating feature.

In fact, there was no change in the market aspect as a whole. Sentiment among operators seemed more bullish. There has been a great deal of profit taking without disturbing prices much. One unfavorable news was construed as favorable in the main.

CONFERENCE ON STEEL AFFECTS ALL BUSINESS

Brought About to Cut Cost of Production and Living

The steel price conference in Washington between manufacturers headed by Judge Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, and the Industrial Board named by Secretary of Commerce Redfield, inspired as much interest in industrial, commercial and financial circles as anything affecting trade which has happened since the armistice. The object of this and subsequent conferences, as stated by Chairman Peek of the Industrial Board, is to get prices for steel, building materials, etc., based not upon such basis as to cause the cost of fabricated articles to automatically decline to a wholesome level. When the costs production and of living are thus reduced the cost of labor will also be automatically reduced without interfering with American standards of life.

While demand for steel products has greatly diminished this year, most of the leaders in this industry are very sanguine as to the future. For four years about all steel produced was for war use and stocks for peace purposes are small. Normal demand ought to soon absorb business to keep mills going at close to capacity for months.

President W. H. Donner of the Donner Steel Co. said in his annual report to stockholders: "Ordinary requirements have been subordinated to war essentials, but must ultimately be supplied, in addition to growing demands of this country and the world, when every available plant will be needed. The iron and steel business is noted for its 'feast or famine' tendency, but its products have never gone out of style; its periods of depression have always been followed by those of record production."

LIVERPOOL AND SPOT HOUSES BOUGHT COTTON

New York, March 20.—The ginning figures were about 80,000 bales larger than expected, but Liverpool and spot house buying on the call temporarily offset its effect on the cotton market today. Old crop contracts opened 22 to 32 points higher, while new style contracts showed initial gains of 8 to 15 points. Later, however, Wall Street selling and commission house pressure developed partly on the ginning figures and the cotton market eased off, and at the end of the first twenty minutes showed a net decline of about 5 points on the new crop months.

CORNER CLUBS TO REPLACE SALOONS

Community Council Busy on Plans to Establish Substitutes for the Bar

New York, March 20.—Conversation, study, dancing and music will take the place of strong drink in the saloon of the future, which will be the real "beer mans club." This is the opinion of Dr. John W. Slaughter, director of the community council of the National Defence. These councils are studying the question of a substitute for the saloon.

"The saloon," says Dr. Slaughter, "has carried with it two handicaps, too intensively alcoholic liquors and the absence of the women of the family. These two factors combined have driven many men to false steps.

"In the community club which may be located in the old corner saloon man should be able to gather as they do now and discuss politics, load or play games, as they do now.

"But there will be this great difference. The wives, mothers and daughters of the neighborhood will have assembly rooms in the same club for singing, dancing or other forms of cooperative effort. They will meet the men on a new basis and varied interests will spring up between them. This will furnish a new outlet for the social instinct.

"Success of the community club idea is indicated by the rapid growth of community councils. There are now 184,000 in the United States."

PLAN NEW MEDFORD CITY HALL AND HIGH SCHOOL

A conference between the Mayor and aldermen will probably be held in Medford within a few days to further steps for the building of a new City Hall at a cost of about $500,000. For the erection of a new junior high school an appropriation of $200,000 by means of a bond issue is asked. Many residents are urging that a trade school be erected instead. The school committee will be asked to make such a recommendation through a petition now in circulation.

It Is Time to Stop Sentimentality; We Must Protect America First

Editor of the American:

I hope you can find occasion to write some editorials on the principle of Protection, and ask what has become of this great American principle in the general confusion of headlong taxation.

Have we lost sigt of the fact that in this post-bellum period when everything is to be reconstructed on a new basis—that the principle of Protection is one of the great means to enable our country to reconstruct its industries without the disastrous trade interference of foreign nations, without the trade invasion, the trade war, which is very likely to be levelled at us?

England is supposed to be a Free Trade country, and yet it has gone, in exclusion of American goods, far beyond the principle of Protection through taxation—it has gone to the absolute exclusion of American products.

Now, this great American principle of Protection will not only protect American industries in this serious reconstruction period, in this period of trade war and commercial invasion. It will raise a large amount of income and would relieve some of the direct tax burdens that now fall heavily upon the people.

It would benefit the country in two ways, then. It would benefit the industries by freeing them from the danger of foreign industrial attack, and it would benefit the individuals and the institutions throughout the nation by relieving them of some of the heavy burdens of taxation and enabling them to devote their money to their industries and to the building up of their business and their foreign trade.

A Republican Congress is about to come in. It is looking for issues. Is it going to neglect the great issue with which the Republican party has identified itself for many years?

There are many Democrats who believe in Protection, and who in this critical state of our national existence would think more of principles beneficial to the nation than they would of any partisan consideration.

The principle of Protection, too, would fit in well with the Republican party's policy of nationalization.

If America is to take a dominant part in world affairs, the first duty of genuine Americans is to build up America so that it CAN take a dominant part in world affairs.

It is time that true Americans stopped maudlin and hysterical sentimentality over the conditions of other nations, which are coming to be better off than this nation.

It is time that we stopped exhausting the resources of this country to contribute frantically and foolishly to other nations, who are coming to possess their own resources and ours as well.

England has declared her determination to dominate the seas and to dominate the air. She is proceeding also by great acquisitions of territory to dominate the lands as well.

Her contiguous, or at least continuous, empire will encircle the earth and include a third part of it.

The question of having the United States excluded from the markets of a great part of the world by British decree is a question which must be fearlessly and intelligently met and competently solved.

As an initial step toward the solution of this problem let the great American principle of Protection be vigorously revived and put into active operation in this country.

Let all true Americans stand ready to consider their country first and their party afterward.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

It certainly is high time, as Mr. Hearst says, "to end the prevalent maudlin and hysterical sentimentality over the conditions of other nations."

In last Sunday's Advertiser and American, George Bernard Shaw speaks of "the importance that war gives to fools who are negligible in peace."

A very serious trouble with us at present is that the fools who were given importance by war are still permitted to make themselves appear important and still deferred to by public men and newspapers that ought to know better.

These sickly sentimentalities are making our nation a joke in the eyes of intelligent Europeans. In every European country the government and the leading men and influential press have all put sentimentality aside and are all interested in legislation and combination to build up the industries and the trade of their respective peoples.

The British Government and the financial and commercial leaders of Great Britain are not wasting a moment's time in worrying or talking about the interests or the welfare of any nation but Great Britain. The same thing is true of the French and Italian Governments and business and financial leaders.

Without waiting for the treaty of peace to be proclaimed, or even formulated, the English Government has peremptorily barred a large number of American products from sale in Great Britain. And no matter whether we think that this is an ungrateful return for American aid in saving Great Britain from defeat by Germany, our practical sense still tells us that it is a measure which will enormously benefit English manufacturers and English finance and English labor at the expense of the United States.

And now if we will use the same common sense in looking at the other side of the problem we will let drop all this sentimental sniffling and humbugging cant about our dear allies—very dear, it is true—and the fifty odd other nations of the earth and get down to the business of building up the industries and promoting the welfare and the comfort of our own folk.

Had Germany and Austria won the war, undoubtedly those two governments would have pursued the same policy which the victors are now pursuing.

They would first have parceled out the spoils of their military victory and then by tariffs and embargoes would have closed the markets of Central and Northern Europe and of Asia as far as the boundaries of India to the products and the trade of the United States.

And just as we should have been bound in reason and in self-defence to protect ourselves against German and Austrian economic warfare, had these powers won the war, so we ought in reason and in self-defence to protect ourselves against the economic aggressions of the powers that did come out victorious.

We ought to have no sentimentality whatever about these matters.

The British Government has already begun to deny our goods access to the markets controlled by England; the French Government is preparing to follow suit; the Italian Government in all probability will be given inducements to do the same thing, and we shall surely be, whether willingly or unwillingly, the antagonists of our present military associates in a great and far-reaching economic struggle.

In the circumstances there is only one sensible thing to do.

We must throw this sentimental nonsense on the scrap heap and get down to the business of meeting embargoes and subsidies and all the tricks and devices of economic warfare with the powerful weapon of retaliation.

If our products are only to go abroad under the humoring restrictions of embargoes and licenses, then we must see to it that those nations who put such restrictions upon the shipment and selling of our products shall not freely ship and sell their products in our great home markets.

Against the flood of cheap labor products which the countries now putting up bars against our products mean to roll in upon the United States, to the injury and the partial destruction of our domestic industries, we must put up the strong dike of protective tariffs.

When any nation debars, embargoes or taxes the import of goods made in American factories or grown upon American farms, then we should attach an equal tax to any goods which that country makes or grows and seeks to sell in the United States.

We must give tit for tat.

The man who talks sentimentality instead of business sense in these decisive times is a hopeless dunce.

He may think that he is a patriot or a humanitarian, but he is neither.

So, too, the man who talks free trade, who advocates opening our doors wide to the products of countries which shut their doors tight to the products of our country, is another dunce. The only reason that fans do not need a pair of ears to designate his rightful place among the fauna is that his bray is sufficient to show what he is.

We confess that we are sick and tired of the mushy and sloppy sentimentalists whom the hysteria and excitement of war brought to the surface of public affairs, just as the boiling in the pot brings to the top the useless scum.

The great mass of us who have common sense and some ability to think straight have submitted entirely too long to the noisy and silly and stupid harangues and outbursts of these pests; these hybrids who are 10 per cent. pro-American and 90 per cent. pro-something else; these foolish creatures who throw fits of sympathy in public over the woes of distant peoples and who wouldn't give a dime to buy a pint of milk for a hungry baby in a Boston tenement house.

It is enough to have public meetings and a large part of the press monopolized by these feeble wits, but it is intolerable that they should be allowed to dictate the political and economical policies which the nation must pursue in its relations with foreign countries.

The right thing to do, the only sensible thing to do, the only 100 per cent. American thing to do, is to put up the strong wall of protective tariffs between the industries and the markets of this country of ours and the hostile legislation and meditated economic invasion of other nations.

We must do exactly as other countries do—we must look to our own interests and our own welfare first.

We must protect our own manufacturers and farmers and working people before giving either thought or money or time or effort to helping foreign countries.

We must protect America first.

FOR A couple of nights.
I WAS nervous.
AND DIDN'T sleep well.
AND MY wife said.
I SHOULD ask the house doctor.
WHAT WAS the matter.
AND IF I'd telephone.
AND HE'D come to our room.
I'D HAVE to pay him.
SO INSTEAD of that.
I SAT in the lobby.
TILL HE came in.
AND WE shook hands.
AND HAD a visit.
AND WHILE we visited.
I REMARKED casually.
THAT I wasn't sleeping.
AND HE asked me questions.
ABOUT WHAT I ate.
AND WHAT I smoked.
AND WHAT I drank.
AND WHEN I told him.
I SMOKED all the time.
AND DRANK coffee.
AT NOON and night.
AND HE suggested.
THAT FOR a little while.
I CUT out coffee.
AND QUIT smoking.
AND I said I would.
AND I did.
AND HAD an awful time.
FOR A couple of days.
AND THE third day.
ON MY way to lunch.
DOWN IN the grill.
I MET the doctor.
ON HIS way to lunch.
AND HE asked me with him.
AND I went.
AND WHEN I ordered.
I ORDERED ice.
AND THE doctor said.
TO MAKE it weak.
AND THEN he ordered coffee.
AND I didn't say anything.
I JUST sat there.
AND WATCHED the doctor.
WALLOW IN coffee.
HE DRANK three cups.
AND THE way I felt.
I COULD have jammed his face.
RIGHT INTO the cup.
AND AFTER lunch.
WE SAT in the lobby.
AND I couldn't smoke.
AND THE doctor did.
HE HAD a big cigar.
AND HE loved it.
AND NEARLY gassed me.
BLOWING THE smoke.
ALL AROUND the place.
AND IT'S all right.
A DOCTOR'S a doctor.
AND A patient's a patient.
AND IF they like suicide.
IT'S THEIR business.
BUT THEY ought to let us do it.
IF WE want to.
IF IT was a lawyer.
HE'D FIX it up.
SO I could break the rules.
AND STILL live.

I THANK you.

Maeterlincks' Eternal Triangle Broken

Three-Cornered True Love Story Is Stranger Than Fiction.

SINCE the dawn of time and the beginning of the telling of tales, the Eternal Triangle has been the chief plot employed by the fiction-writers. Perhaps because Love is the greatest thing in life—and love gone astray its most absorbing problem.

Perhaps strangest of all the true stories of this Triangle recorded in history, is the true story of the Maeterlincks. For eight years it endured. In the converted abbey at Caudebec on the Seine, which was the Maeterlincks' lonely home—off the main-travelled road, and little frequented by guests, because it was understood the great poet and philosopher hated crowds, and could not endure people around—when the fever of writing was upon him—Georgette LeBlanc, his adoring wife, received charming young Renee Dahon, golden-haired actress whom she had befriended and taught. The Maeterlincks were both past fifty; Mme. Maeterlinck shared her husband's delight in the youth and beauty of the delightful young girl. But gradually the wife saw love for Renee dawning in the husband's eyes—the love that had been hers, but which she, growing old, was now powerless to hold!

And so for eight years, the three lived on at the abbey, the wife sacrificing her own happiness, and still making a home for the girl, because she knew her husband's happiness depended on the girl's staying there, and his happiness was more to her than her own. Also, Georgette LeBlanc loved and appreciated her husband's genius, and she knew he could not write unless he was happy. But one day she discovered that her own presence there was not only no longer necessary, but it made the other two unhappy. She was in the way! So she went to Paris and quietly procured a divorce. Now the triangle is broken, and the Belgian dramatist has married young Renee.

This story—stranger than any Maeterlinck himself has written, is told for the first time in detail in next Sunday's Sunday Advertiser and American.

The real love affair of Madeline Drexel-Dahlgren, Red Cross ambulance driver in France, and Reginald Townsend, Red Cross worker, is another interesting and pretty story told next Sunday—if it wasn't exactly according to socially ambitious Mrs. Drexel-Dahlgren's wishes!

"Newest Spring Cloaks" are the latest conceit of Lady Duff-Gordon, the famous "Lucile." Too perfectly sweet!

And—of course, the Comics! And an unusual lot of other good things, next Sunday, in the Advertiser and American.

WHEN YOU ARE WITH THE "DOUGH-BOYS"

Mr. Man of moderate salary, you are mistaken if you think that men of means will think more of you because you seem eager to spend money, and pay more than your share of obligations to be divided when out with these men.

When you are with men of this class you need not be a piker, but you surely will create an unfavorable impression with them if you try to be as lavish in your expenditures as they are.

You cannot hide your true financial condition from a bunch of business men who have made their roll by knowing men.

Why try to travel under false colors—colors that they know to be false?

Do you think an employer of men, with an income many times larger than yours, would want to hire you to fill a responsible position for him if you have utter disregard for the true relation of matters and money?

The man you can win by your hail-fellow-well-met manner and the knowledge that you are a "good spender" is not the sort of man who can ever do you any good by helping you to a lucrative position.

Men advanced to responsible positions must show business ability enough to live within their means, and without apologizing for it, either.

Egg, or Hen Thought or Word? Henry Ford vs. Milton

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

You have heard this question: "Which came first, the hen or the egg?"

Henry Ford, in "Mr. Ford's Own Page" of his weekly newspaper, raises another question.

"Which comes first, the idea or the words with which to express the idea?"

Says Mr. Ford:

"Among the tools we work with are words. Words stand for ideas, but ideas are often held back for lack of words, as freight is held up for lack of cars. Many men who possess ideas are hindered because they do not possess enough words to deliver them. You may notice this in current discussions of our social problems. It sometimes happens that people who indulge in these discussions exhibit a lack of words—tools with which to complete their mental work."

Mr. Ford's answer to the hen or egg, thought or word, question is different from that of Milton, who wrote "Paradise Lost," and as secretary for Cromwell showed himself a good word fighter, as well as the world's greatest epic poet.

According to Milton the trouble is lack of ideas, not lack of words. He says that when a man is really in earnest and controlled by the "Serious and hearty love of truth, his words, like so many nimble and airy servitors, trip about him at command, and in well-ordered files, as he would wish, fall aptly into their own places."

The greatest French authority on style, Bolleau, also rejects Henry Ford's theory. Bolleau says:

"That which is well conceived expresses itself clearly and the words to say it arrive easily."

THe egg came before the hen, or else a miracle happened. And the idea comes before the words. Animals with no thought get along nicely without language. It was the birth of complicated thought in the mind of man that compelled him to invent language, just as a desire for the skin of the bear, and its meat, compelled him to invent a spear with which to kill the bear.

Men of powerful emotion and earnest thought sometimes, not often, think themselves lacking in words. That is because they have not read even a little or written at all.

Ford would never have made an automobile had he not learned something about mechanical construction. But he had to have the automobile in his MIND before he could make it and set it running.

Let no man who thinks he has ideas worth while worry about lack of words to express the thought. It is the idea that makes the word, not the word that makes the idea.

It is true that the Bible says: "In the beginning was the word," but in that passage our English "word" is the best equivalent that the translator could find for the Greek word logos. And that Greek word means many things. Little boys that learned Greek in French schools were taught to translate o logos into le discours and French word discourse.

"Discourse," a very comprehensive expression, is a more nearly exact although inadequate translation of o logos.

Don't believe for a moment, if you are not able to interest others in speaking or make a living writing, that your trouble is lack of words.

Robert Louis Stevenson, alleged by many to have written the most nearly perfect English prose, which he did not, says that Bunyan did more than any other to teach him how to write.

And Bunyan was a poor, ignorant man who went to jail because his respect for what he believed to be the truth was stronger than his fear of imprisonment.

In his case the "serious and hearty love of truth" was sufficient, in spite of his simple mind and lack of education, to make him a master of style, whose writing outlives that of tens of thousands of Oxford and Cambridge men that possessed in abundance the words that Mr. Ford rightly calls "tools we work with."

Nobody knows better than Mr. Ford that tools are useless to the man who is not a mechanic. Words are useless to the man who is not a thinker.

Tens of millions speaking English have possessed more education than Shakespeare. Shakespeare had the thought and the imagination. He used more different words than any other writer in the English language or in any language. But the words did not make Shakespeare; his genius made the words.

So with Dante, another of the world's three greatest writers. He created and fixed the Italian language in his immortal work. Thought, ambition, intense hatred of his enemies, bitterness of soul, in one who had "held out his hand" to beg for bread, supplied the words with which he created the language of Italy.
